Alexandria Gazette

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 15, 1879.

A BEAR HUNT.-An immesse black bear was killed on Monday morning in Colonel Jas. T. Preston's field, two and a half mile east of Bristol. He was dispovered in R. T. Legard's field before sucset on Sunday afternoon, and Mr. Legard's family apprised of the fact. With a pair of good dogs and a few guns chase was at once made and the game started. Making his way northward to the railroad, he dashed under one of the covered railroad bridges and was soon in the woods in the north and west of the road. Some delay occurred in summoning assistance and for a time the bear was lest. Numbers soon gathered about the woods where he had disappeared. Indeed, after moonrise, say about nine o'clock, a splendid neighborhood delegation that would have compared favorably with a Wallace's Switch political meeting was on the ground. He was soon found and frequently shot in the head, but a grunt and a dash at either men or dogs was the only result. At one time he made a furious dash at R. T. Legard, who was for a moment in great danger, and was saved only by an at-tack of the dogs. The sport ran on until some hour or mere after midnight, when Samuel Legard, at some thirty paces, put a load of buckshot behind his shoulder that made him spring forward and bite the dust. One of the shot had penetrated the heart. He measured five feet four inches from tip of nose to tail, and weighed nearly 400 pounds. Unexpectedly he was in fine order, and the meat was divided among those present at the sport. He was doubtless from the Iron Mountain or White Top.—Bristol, Va., News.
